CHEAP EXCURSION TO THE GULF!

No new place in the United States ever attracted so much public attention, and was the subject of so many favorable press comments and editorial notices from the leading metropolitan journals of the country as the

The reason for this is because of the fact that it has been recognized by the shrewdest business men and managers of the trunk railroad lines of the West that a GREAT CITY would be built on the Texas coast in obedience to the demands of Commerce.

EEP WATER PORT

On the Texas coast means a greater annual saving of wealth to the people residing west of the Mississippi River, than is often gained by wars of conquest by the mightiest armies in the world. A committee composed of expert financiers and business men of the highest talent appointed by the great deep water convention, held at Denver in 1888, after months of careful research and labor, reported that the composed of expert financiers and business men of the highest talent appointed by the great deep water convention, held at Denver in 1888, after months of careful research and labor, reported that the saving in freight rates by reaching tide water on the Texas coast with surplus products of the West, instead of the Atlantic Sea Board, would amount to $120,000,000 per RANNUM. There is a volume of surplus to $400,000,000 annually from the great West and foreign countries that will find its nearest and most natural entrepot on the western coast of the Gulf of Mexico.

No such natural demand for the building of a great city to accommodate the change conditions of commercial affairs ever existed before at any place in the United States. The largest Rail Road interests of the west have recognized the inevitable and have been preparing for it for several years. The one point that towers above all others as the natural location for the great city on the Texas coast is the
